Lavish Chardonnay Treatments Celebrate the 21st Annual Boston Wine Festival
Relax and Unwind with an Indulgent Chardonnay Massage and Body Wrap at The Spa at Rowes Wharf

Boston (January 25, 2010) – On January 8, 2010, the Boston Harbor Hotel celebrated the opening of the 21st annual Boston Wine Festival. To commemorate the nation's longest running wine and food series, now entering its third decade, The Spa at Rowes Wharf is celebrating with two indulgent Chardonnay treatments.

Treat yourself to a luxurious Chardonnay Body Wrap ($140). This serene and revitalizing treatment begins with an Olavie Chardonnay Sugar Scrub – a blend of cane sugar and shea butter. This all natural scrub exfoliates while nourishing and protecting the skin. The scrub is gently removed by a warm Vichy shower followed by a soothing Chardonnay body butter massage. The Chardonnay, lavender and rosemary increase skin hydration, leaving you with a natural glow.

The refreshing Chardonnay Massage ($130) melts away stress, reviving and nourishing dry winter skin using Olavie Chardonnay massage oil. Grape seed extract, jojoba, macadamia nut, avocado and coconut oils combine to help smooth, moisturize, and hydrate your skin, leaving you feeling relaxed and rejuvenated.

The 21st annual Boston Wine Festival offers guests exclusive dinners hosted by some of the world's most famous winemakers, each personally invited by Boston Wine Festival founder, Chef Daniel Bruce. This year, in celebration of the 21st anniversary, Chef Bruce has invited some of his most beloved boutique wineries. Industry rising stars as well as luminaries from the past twenty years will also join in the 2010 festivities.

Chef Bruce maintains his unique philosophy of matching dishes to wines by tasting and creating flavor profiles that enhance both the wine and food experience. Eight years ago this inspired the opening of Meritage the restaurant, which celebrates the Festival with its food and wine pairing concept.

Seminars, dinners, brunches and receptions began January 8, 2010 and will end with a closing reception on April 2, 2010. The all-star lineup includes some of the finest wineries and top personalities from the world of wine.
