A Waterfront “Spooky Tea” at Intrigue Cafe

Calling all little Witches and Goblins: Enjoy a Haunted High Tea at the Boston Harbor Hotel

Boston (October 9, 2008) – With Halloween fast approaching, the Five Star Boston Harbor Hotel invites trick or treaters far and wide (and their families, of course!) to indulge in “Spooky Tea” to gear up for another holiday full of ghouls, goblins and ghosts.

“Spooky Tea” is a special twist on traditional afternoon tea offered at Intrigue Café at the Boston Harbor Hotel. While adults indulge in a refreshing glass of champagne accompanied by strawberries and Devonshire cream, children, wearing their Halloween’s finest, will get into the Halloween spirit with their choice of hot chocolate or apple cider accompanied by cookies to decorate served on personally designed spider web plates.

After guests choose from a wide variety of exotic and traditional teas, “Spooky Tea” service will begin with two selections of warmed scones coupled with Breakfast Bread and served with Devonshire cream and fresh berries. Next, guests may select from the scrumptious selection of finger sandwiches expertly prepared by renowned Chef Daniel Bruce, which include Caviar, Smoked Chicken Salad and Smoked Salmon with Crème Fraîche. Finally, guests will be tempted with a collection of indulgent pastries like Maple Filled Profiteroles and Caramel Cheesecake prepared by the Boston Harbor Hotel’s own Pastry Chef Bill Romiza. Keeping in the spirit of Halloween, “Spooky Tea” guests will receive their own little trick or treat to take home.

Guests are invited to experience “Spooky Tea” on Friday, October 31 through Sunday, November 2 from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. The price for adults is $30.00 for adults and $20.00 for children. Children should wear their costume.
